Are you getting credit and payment for your level of care delivery?

Every year, more state Medicaid agencies, commercial payers, quality reporting and profiling agencies are adopting Solventum APR DRGs to either process claims or report on the performance of healthcare organizations—or both. If your state or other payers were to adopt Solventum APR DRGs, how well would your reimbursement reflect the services you delivered?

Solvantum APR DRGs demand a level of complete and accurate documentation and coding well beyond what is needed for the original DRG system. Whether your organization is a small rural hospital or a large urban trauma center, the sooner you understand and apply Solventum APR DRGs to your data, the sooner you can improve the accuracy of both your reimbursement and quality outcome reports.

The ICD-10 transition brought with it the need for increased coding specificity, but it also caused coding changes in both SOI and ROM and some DRG shifts. How has your organization been handling these changes?

Performance data monitoring

Solventum™ Performance Data Monitoring from Solventum is a combination of software and consulting services that offers easy-to-understand graphs and charts that bring data to life. For the Solventum APR DRG Services, Solventum PDM includes:

- Physician web portal with dashboards that provide a physician-level look at key performance indicators, including MS-DRGs, Solventum APR DRGs, SOI, ROM and ALOS
- Profiling reports
- Severity of illness (SOI) with reimbursement reports

Real results

Accurate and complete documentation can increase case mix, which can help you receive complete reimbursement. The chart below shows an example of what Solventum consultants found during a chart audit at a Solventum customer site. The original documentation and coding understated both the average SOI weights and the expected ROM rates. The audited results clearly show that taking action on this information can represent a significant financial opportunity for this hospital.

Additional service to consider

Solventum customers who use the Solventum APR DRG Services often choose to add the CDI revitalization program from Solventum, too. This program can help improve inpatient record documentation by establishing a coordinated, systemic process using a concurrent review team to strengthen communication between caregivers, physicians, and coding professionals. More specific documentation can be captured when a physician responds to clinically-driven questions from a well-trained review staff before the patient's discharge.

Two weeks of educational and clinical sessions are customized to customer needs during the assessment/evaluation.
